So finally we got a chance to review the new Apple iPhone 4S, and it's not as much of an upgrade as some had hoped for. It's still an awesome phone, but it doesn't bring anything new. Apple announced a bunch of new features, but nothing revolutionary (at least compared to other phones). It has a brand new A5 processor, 4-inch Retina Display (the highest resolution LCD Apple has ever produced), NFC, Siri, MMS, auto-rotate, and other minor stuff that you'll notice if you have the 4S. Unfortunately, none of the new features really carry over to this phone. It's just an evolutionary upgrade, and although it's great for the iPhone 4S to have NFC, MMS, and Siri, the rest of the features are totally inconsequential. No. 6,023,813 discloses a process for catalytically hydrotreating a hydrocarbon oil feedstock to remove undesirable components such as sulfur, nitrogen and/or metallic contaminants. In the process, a hydrocarbon oil feedstock is contacted in a hydroprocessing catalyst bed under hydroprocessing conditions with a hydrogen-containing gas to produce a hydroconversion product. A first portion of the catalyst is separated from the hydroconversion product, and the hydroconversion product is subjected to hydrotreating. The catalyst can be a catalyst containing at least one Group VIII metal and a binder on a porous carrier material. A process has now been discovered to upgrade a hydrocarbon oil feedstock to remove sulfur compounds from the feedstock while minimizing undesirable side reactions, such as coking. A preferred process of the invention comprises contacting a feedstock containing carbonaceous material with hydrogen in a hydroprocessing catalyst bed at a temperature of at least about 650° F. and a pressure of at least about 2500 psig (about 17.8 MPa) and a space velocity of at least about 200 hr−1 to produce a product gas stream comprising hydrogen, hydrogen sulfide and carbon dioxide. The product gas stream is quenched to at least about 400° F. The product gas stream is flashed, and a product gas stream containing hydrogen is produced. Carbon dioxide is removed from the hydrogen-rich product
